NUMBER 2

This sign has been appearing all around the country. Every Christmas they can be seen in various cities around the nation. It makes fun of the idea of church and the birth of Christ. It suggests that everything about Christianity is fake and not true.

These signs are produced by the American Atheists Association and apparently have a lot of support from people who deny the existence of an Almighty God.

An atheist does not believe in the truth revealed in the Bible so any attempt to prove God's existence from scripture would be futile. The Bible states that the "the fool has said in his heart there is no God" but these words have no meaning to someone who does not believe in God. The Bible also says that there are "some who profess to be wise," but are really very foolish in their reasoning and understanding. But, again, these words from scripture fall on the deaf ears of the atheist because if there is no God, then a book proclaiming to be God's word would have to be a fake.

But the evidence of God does not have to be proven or established by the Bible. A close look at the natural world reveals an intelligent force at work in its creation. Any piece of machinery, from a complicated watch to a more sophisticated automobile, proves a designer and a maker. A watch did not just put itself together. The millions of pieces that make up a modern automobile did not just come together in and of themselves. The difference in style, size and design of each make of automobile proves a designer and a builder.

The different forms of life found within the animal and plant kingdom proves a design. The different life forms, from the smallest one cell organism, to the complexity of the human body, suggest there had to be intelligent design. It is no more reasonable to believe that a machine had to be designed and built to exist than it is to believe that the human body had to be designed and created by an intelligent Being.

The existence of a moral conscience within human life also points toward an intelligent Designer. Lower forms of animal life have no knowledge of right and wrong from a moral standpoint. They just act from natural instinct. Where did man get a conscience? Where did the idea of right and wrong come from? There is something inherent within man that gives him a sense of moral direction. If all life came from a single source how did man branch out with a moral conscience that is not found in animals? Where did mankind get emotions? These are things that only a Supreme Being could supply.

The atheist may believe that God is non-existent and the Good News about Jesus Christ the Savior of the world is "fake news," but one day the reality of it all will be made manifest. What does a person lose by believing in God and living a good moral life? What is gained by not believing in God?

Would you rather believe in God and in His Son Jesus Christ and be wrong about that belief, or believe there is no God and the news about Jesus is fake, and be wrong? It does not take an intellect to determine which would be the best choice. If there is no life after death and no judgment to face, I have lost nothing as a believer. But if there by some chance happens to be life after death and a day of judgment I lose everything as an unbeliever.

You must determine which is the real "fake news."
